3033 61727054 Says Ken is Next Fluff (self.GME)
submitted 2 months ago by RatioAtBlessons to r/GME

I know that you know what that number relates to Ken. I know that you have a plaque in your NY office with that on it. Actually..It's known that London, Chicago, New York all have 61727-054 cleverly placed and/or referred to.

61727-054 bold move

For the longest time you've done everything possible to exceed where they failed. For years now you've shared your goals and your ambitions when it comes to Citadel. To be the biggest you've gotta slay the legend. You've never shied away from letting those around you know what your aim is..what really fuels you everyday, every account, every trade. To be the king of Wall St. Bigger and scarier than the Wolf. A legend. A myth.

...A genius. Just like xXx did it but better. They got tired and worn out. You've always considered that their weakness. They were only able to keep it going for so long, you've always felt as though you could get away with it forever.

I must admit..you've been clever. You've taken what you learned and have adapted quite well. That was until you allowed two mistakes to be made.

I didn't catch it before in 2019 when I started to peek behind the curtains and peel back the layers. But I have now and day by day so do others. Just like you...plain sight.

The more I think about it and the more research that I do into the books, I can't believe that NO ONE outside a handful of others have recognized the patterns. But that's okay..because 🧐's are getting ever so close. So many 🧐's are on the path, they just haven't stumbled upon the right trees and bushes. Yet.

{Insert Rozay} I remember being blind to it Til the day I put my mind to it

Funny how alumni networks have become so clutch over the past year(Fuck Covid, amirite?)...Without them how would some dumb ape be able to gain access to the Citadel Securities Department of Computer Science at a certain uni..🤔🤔🤔

jUsT me babooning but word on Sixth St. is that your frienemies on Congress Ave. are running out of leverage when it comes to that quiet little office in Austin.

Just a matter of tick tocks 'til the real show begins Ken. What's your move then?

This is juicy with a twist of underpaid over worked intern/employee scorned.

My long time thought is 1. there are several layers making non-public moves to protect and insulate some cash all the way through the chain. Financial, legal, political. 2. This is so much bigger than a few stocks or a margin call.

That's why all this DD on technicals and timing are like throwing darts at a wall. There are too many variables that people will never see.

In summer 2008, the market was weird. It had been in weird for 2.5 years at that point, coming from a shorted and destroyed public home builder IR team, to managing a mega cap retail company IR department. But July and Aug 2008 felt different. More trading and movement than a typical summer. Lots more incoming calls than usual.

A week before Lehman and Bear collapsed, the analysts covering us had to let go of most their teams. The day they fell, they were walked out of their offices. A few months later BAML fired their entire San Francisco equity and research office. Our analyst was skiing with his kids and was fired on the chairlift. No bonus nothing. Never even got to go back to his office. They couriered his belongings.

Stocks fell and skidded, and then tumbled some more. To give you an idea C was at $1.30, SBUX was at $7.50, MSFT was at $14, DOW was at $6. Everyone was dumping everything they had. The more they sold and liquidated, the more it declined. Smart people with a little stomach and grit started to buy these deep discounts. They bought and held. It did not recover overnight. It took some stocks longer than others.

Ask yourself this, how in a pandemic when everything was closed are major companies in nearly every sector at 52-week highs?

Valuation? Future Earnings when many companies have pulled back on guidance given the uncertainty? Nope no possible way.

Offsetting hedges on short positions? Maybe. It makes far more logical sense. I follow a basket of about 60 stocks I know extremely well over a breadth of sectors and sizes. The only ones not near their 52-week or even 104-week high are massively shorted stocks. That go up and down and then list along.

All the DD in the world will never account for the stuff quietly underway through our entangled financial system.

Just buy and hodl. That is the retail investor influence. It is the easiest role. Patience.

So did the shorts gamble on covid ruining the US stockmarket, but the economys resilience has surprised the bears?

Were they expecting an 08 style nosedive but actually the vaccine came around and 50% adults vaccinated in 12 months was just not in the risk models? Their blackswan event had a blackswan solution?

So now there's shorts left right and center that need to be covered that are outside the bears reach?

[–] throwawaylurker012 35 points 2 months ago

Perfect phrasing: black swan event with a black swan solution

We were looking at 2-3 years of lockdowns or time without vaccine early on based on early predictions. This coulda have factored heavy in their movements post covid crash last year

permalink reddit ceddit

[–] UEAMatt 34 points 2 months ago

I wonder if the gamble was right but the premiums were wrong. There's still a huge amount of public debt globally that's going to crystallise at some point

Its like if Burrys bet in 08 hadnt come good in 5 years it would have been game over and the contracts void. They perhaps aren't wrong, just early.

Maybe the shorts time frame was on a 2-3 Yr collapse. But with retail capital entering the stock market and the covid revival coming sooner, maybe this puts the clock back to something like 5-6 years minimum before the debt crystalises - which gives time for society to restructure and possibly tackle the debt.

So now the premiums (short interest) are too high and the margin call is looming. The question is how much leverage was used in making these bets and how far does the rabbit hole go? How much was borrowed to short the economy that's now never going to get paid back?

permalink reddit ceddit

[–] Lanessar \(deleted by user\) 69 points 2 months ago

The missing piece of this is the fake shares.

They shorted the entire market, but did not secure the shares before doing so.

Now, the entire market is flooded with a bet backed by nothing.

GameStop was just the right place, right time, right amount of float, and overleveraged to the tits with fake shares to show the whole thing.

What we don't know or aren't accounting for in the DD is that every stock is overleveraged in the same bet.

This is why Buffet was saying "don't bet against America", and why his company will likely be the only one standing after this.

This isn't a conspiracy theory. It's been confirmed. Warren Buffet, Michael Burry, everyone knew what was happening.

If I told you that most funds run their plays like Archegos does, would it surprise you?

Now consider most of players doing this to a majority of the market. Does that explain the Covid rip? The Black Swan Solution is the problem — too fast, not enough time to Recover and Wind Down (004?) A decent explanation of how Archegos fell.

permalink reddit ceddit

[–] Lanessar \(deleted by user\) 6 points 2 months ago

"Archegos" in itself is a Greek word that means one who leads the way.

It's very likely this is just the first domino falling, and that everyone else is also over-leveraged.

GS sold off everything, fire-sale style. Ever watch Margin Call? Notice the entire movie was set two days before the 2008 collapse?

[–] ballygu \(deleted by user\) 5 points 2 months ago

Yup GS ran out the door first while everyone else thought they were going to do a controlled sell by offering blocks with guarantees, interest, and other sweeteners. (I had a long ass reply written before my above comment but lost it while taking my kid to school, didn't have it in me to spend and other forty minutes on it.)

Everyone IS over leveraged. It is hidden enough for now.

Imagine Margin Call but with half the market, not just mortgages. The taps on the shoulder are coming.

It's a Ponzi scheme of shares. Boring from one to pay the other writing naked shares to cover x paying with y. It's been in the open the entire time. Shifting a to b, c to d rinse repeat. This entire thing is a share fucked circle. We keep buying stock because mostly it's just being printed like money. The money is used to short, which is shuffled like buckets.

The glitch isn't a glitch.

[–] HOLDstrongtoPLUTO 347 points 2 months ago

The excuse I've always heard to justify naked shorting is.. "Banks give businesses loans, businesses give that same money out as loans from cash flow to other businesses in exchange for products/services/investments, etc.

That analogy is a hunk of crap.

My version it's more like a library than the business cash flow example. The library is the market, the rows of the library the sectors, shelves would be companies and books are the shares. Sometimes the library gets more books in (shares added, new IPO, etc..)or loses some books each month(buybacks, splits, etc..) but regardless of this inventory change, every single book is always accounted for.

Here's where it gets interesting.. since there's a unique barcode ID on each book to keep track of the book's location, a librarian (DTCC) could always track down those books and contact the last person responsible and hold them accountable (and we all know how serious an offense this is :)) Needless to say, a library card holder, let's call him Fuk(hedge funds, MMs) comes along and checks out a book at no cost to him, in fact, the librarian even gives him a complimentary bookmark. (This is where reality ends, we said screw the barcodes in real life)

Now, Fuk has a bunch of clown friends :) who want books, but don't have library cards. Fuk decides to lend the book to these one of the clown friends who doesn't have a library card but takes on a big risk by doing so, because he knows his friends are all clumsy clowns too, and lose these things all the time. Fuk, who has a trust fund justifies this apparent risk by telling himself he will be greedy and charge each of his clowns who doesn't have access to the library $1 to rent this, let's call it a $183.00 valued, book from him. Even though Fuk doesn't need the money because he's rich.

This goes great for a couple months in fact, he's checking out more books than anyone else in the whole friggin town. Fuk becomes cool with the librarian who sees he is learning a lot, and reading all these books, so she let's Fuk start to take out 30 books at a time now because he's shown a responsible track record and Fuk definitely doesn't want to get off his fat ass up to go to the library more than he has to.

One day Fuk decides to check out 30 books belonging to a limited edition set, where the only other backup copy is held by the author. Of course, Fuk lends these to his clown friends, who actually end up burning all the books doing clown stuff. Fuk keeps $30 premium and his greedy ass even kept all the bookmarks, which he sold for $5 total on Craigslist. Fuk is counting his dough when his clown buddies come crying and saying they lost all the books!! While panic ensues, a few smooth-brained apes who were firing off rocket emojis overhear this malarky and realize the deep fukin value of buying the only copy of the series left from the author.

Some time goes by, and Fuk doesn't do shit except start freaking out about how bad he did himself in this time because those were actually $100 a piece for the library to buy, not $30 like other books. The librarian trusts Fuk and doesn't "call" (see what I did there?) Fuk about the books for weeks. As time goes on more and more people are asking about this book because the author is completely reforming their writing style to e-commerce and the old collection is now a hot collector's item. The apes hold onto the books as the hype grows, and people at the library start requesting these books and the librarian finally has so much pressure on her to get them, that she finally issues a written notice to Fuk saying:

"I hear you saying you still have the books, BUT.. if you don't have those books by a certain time when they are needed.. You're on the hook to pay for them, not us. Ok byyyyyee"

Fuk's Mom (SEC) overhears that he Fukd up, and demands that Fuk pays for the books out of his trust fund or he's grounded and can't go to the library anymore.

...And this brings us to the current state of Fuk and the library.. the apes are still crushing crayons with their diamond hands and sniffing them while they wait for Fuk to grow up and realize his losses and pay them ape tendies. Oh wait, Fuk threatened one of the ape's life and now the apes want the whole trust fund.

Obligatory rocket: 🚀

I spent the last half hour chasing his profile posts. He blew up all cryptic three weeks ago (3/5-3/12) when things were banging off. To me it leans more towards insider that has to remain cryptic for the sake of what he knows than full tinfoil. He got real sure it was about to kick off and then when it balanced out he stopped posting. Now he's back.

permalink reddit ceddit

[–] SaveMyBags 59 points 2 months ago

I agree that this post heavily triggered my crazy senses. But I still tried to look into it for two reasons. First, it might be legitimate and cryptic for multiple reasons. It could be to hide it from bots, for plausible deniability, because the info was first gathered as insider knowledge but now public, so we have to find it ourselves etc. Or it could be complete nonsense, maybe pieced together from other posts. Citadel and BM have been linked on WSB before, because they both gained heavily from PFOF. Still nonsense might sometimes lead to open thinking in different directions. So it may be worth looking more into these similarities.

Still, I hope this sub doesn't become qanony. I believe there is a great overlap, because qanons also want to see the system collapse, but the conspiracy vibe is really bad.

Fuck off then and give up on GME. You have just highlighted why you're holding for the wrong reasons:

I hold because I believe in the company and the grand plan, and then as an added bonus I also believe a squeeze of some kind is possible.

You: If people start getting weird, I'm selling (to paraphrase you). So you're not holding because you believe in the company, or believe the stock is going up, but you're actually holding because people are telling you to. And then you spit out your dummy and sell once you see something you don't like?

This should have nothing to do with reddit, so I hope if it does squeeze, the SEC/FED call people like you out on these comments, as a sign you have been manipulated by others

If we start upvoting and shouting about conspiracy theory nonsense and unverifiable waffle then it soon will drown out legitimate DD and make us an easy target for the shills/media to start to rubbish us as a sub and as investors.

Think of it this way; This sub says to hold to $100,000 a share minimum - if we look like a legitimate collection of wrinkly-brained apes people will do that. If we look like a bunch of babbling Q-anony lemmings people will sell whenever they start to see decent returns.

I simply don't want this sub to suddenly get excited because an OP - who has previously never dropped a hint of DD or news into the sub - is suddenly masquerading as some insider.

permalink reddit ceddit[-] aNinjaAtNight 29 points 2 months ago

The dd on naked shorting has always been a puzzle because you need to believe that the numbers they are reporting were wrong. All DD has some form of speculation that we believe in. This particular fluff post does take it much farther but if it leads to a discovery of something useful, I'm very excited for it. Worst case, it's just a waste of time and people are still tinfoiling but holding. That's just my perspective though

permalink reddit ceddit[-] budgetdiamondhands -5 points 2 months ago

It's pretty obvious that naked shorting provides an easy source of income flowing from the working class to the elite. I think we're going to see some interesting revelations if we follow where this money goes once it leaves Wall St.. I'm betting sex trafficking, drug running, pedophilia rings.. the list is going to be mind blowing and we are going to see an underbelly of the whole political system and ruling class that will lead to mass hysteria and riots in the street. Collapse the source of funding and everything else follows suit.

Is it too hard to link trillions of dollars obtained through theft from the working class to other shady dealings? You've seen the media manipulation and basic meltdown of those on the losing side of this.. there is more that's being hidden under this iceberg tip. Downvote all you want. I'm not a shill and I'm not taking away from GME because I've got a lot riding this out like anyone else.. but to think these people were being greedy to this extent and taking these risks shows they actually need this funding for some reason. Pure greed in itself doesn't make sense for the web they have spun.

So we're told to be extra nice to each other to weed out shills and people post some observations and speculations digging deeper than "diamond hands" in ONE post and people run in with this abusive behavior? I'm entitled to my opinion without being abused through comments. Feel free to downvote and move on; that's what the little down arrow is for. If you haven't seen the possibilities of extensive corruption and hidden agendas after all of this then I feel you may be the one who is naive and in need of some time in the corner to think. A large portion of my GME earnings will be spent on making this world a better place and fighting the corruption that is possibly hiding beneath this.

[–] rensole 66 points 2 months ago

from what I've seen this is op stringing things together and giving stars, this hardly points to insider knowledge. and honestly from what I've seen from Qanon those stringing things together is the same methodology. I want to know from OP wat the facts are, if I look hard enough I can string Maddof to obama and then to RC and back to GME then back to the VOC if I use enough string. So... instead of "oeh look here" just give facts.

permalink reddit ceddit

[–] julsjulsyo 17 points 2 months ago facts. rensol tbh nothin is facts facts. SI facts? everyday there is new SI calculation, is finra right? are those fAcTs? FTDs? are they real? where is the proof? everything is based on speculation. there are no facts. i mean ftds and naked shorting is aswell a conspiracy. sec dtcc rules ? connected to gme? who knows. everything is a big cOnSplrAcY.. as long as it is real... question: was 2008 a conspiracy? you know the answer.

permalink reddit ceddit

[–] rensole 13 points 2 months ago

ok few things, The SI reported to Finra is self reported, this has been confirmed multiple times, the last time that Citadel where in trouble for this was 2017-2020 with up to 52 (found) fines, the fine for bad reporting was about 300k at max so... yeah thats proof that they could calculate this in as "cost of doing business".

as for the naked shorting and ftd's and everything I'd advise reading this: <https://jacobslevycenter.wharton.upenn.edu/wp-content/uploads/2018/08/ETF-Short-Interest-and-Failures-to-Deliver.pdf>

This is a published thesis that shows how these can be used and they line up with the current methodology. the difference is I can cite papers, look at facts and know how to convey them, conspiracy theorists can't because then it wouldn't be a conspiracy theory.

Isn't citadel the biggest market maker for the NYSE?

Isn't Goldman also located on that street? Didn't they just liquidate 10 billion in block trades?

Why might we want to move the data centers?(aside from the obvious tax related reasons)

OP - is the implication that:

- Citadel is colluding with others to hide fraudulent transactions in their normal operations
- Madoff had legitimate brokerage arm of his firm (citation please), in addition to the Ponzi scheme. This made it harder to detect and gave it an air of legitimacy.
- Citadel is using their status as market maker to provide the same "legitimate" cover...
- ...but instead of a normal Ponzi scheme where disbursements which eat away at capital...
- Citadel has a more sophisticated scheme (albeit relatedly structured) involving shorts, FTDs, and moving capital around to make their assets and positions appear larger than they materially are.
- OP is implying Ken made 2 mistakes: 1 in relation to Austin, TX; the other of a cyclical nature that a few apes have mentioned but haven't caught wider attention yet

- Moving operations to Austin (or having a datacenter there) is disadvantageous in the field of nanosecond trading; NYSE is a preferred base of operations...
- ...but the reason for moving to Texas might be one of the "tells" of the crime - less aggressive or knowledgeable prosecutors (NY has robust financial policing in place, TX less so; TX also has an AG under serious investigation for corruption), but under the guise of lower taxes.
- The cyclical crime is the meat of OP's comments however, and they imply that it's ongoing.
- Operations (especially ongoing ones) in finance need data centers, the kind that Citadel has in Austin.
- Several other competitors that are "in on the fix" have data centers in the same location...
- ...the kind of record keeping that you can't make go away. There is evidence there. Most likely evidence of some "original sin" (2019 per OP's post) - but also something related to ongoing cycles, a dead giveaway just like a Ponzi scheme has a dead giveaway in their portfolio or RoR.
- But for Citadel & co-conspirators, executing this scheme requires leverage and/or a base amount of cash for all parties to keep playing. But that leverage looks like it's drying up...

OP - is this the framework? I can speculate additional details on confirmation.

OP confirmed closeclose = SEC lose. We're zeroing in on OP accessing a data cloud and possibly finding transaction history.

Also, OP hinted at something sketchy about 14 billion in federal university aid and 1 billion of it going to Texas schools which is not the fair relative amount they should get. This would mean someone at UT pocketed part of that money.

OP, is there a transaction history directly connecting citadel to the SEC as a form of bribery? Also, is there a direct link of any UT higher up that suddenly made a big purchase shortly after the school system received federal aid?

I bet there is a direct data line between buildings that just so happens to be accessible to a terminal at UT. That's where the "hidden" transactions are being made. It's how they are able to buy back stock without affecting the market AND without anyone else knowing about it.

However, for almost a week, no one could get anywhere without tire chains or four wheel drive. Nine inches of snow followed by zero degree nights in central Texas will fuck a place up. The downtown core retained power bc of hospitals, critical infrastructure, the capitol, etc. but few could get there for days bc the road conditions were too treacherous. Unless you lived in the downtown area, you weren't going in.

My neighborhood retained electricity because we share a circuit with a hospital. Friends three miles away were sitting in 15-30 degree indoor temps for 6 days and they couldn't get here where I had water, gas, electricity, and a stocked pantry.

Hmmm I wonder if this could be tied to the fact that citadel is the MM for RH. What kind of 'bigger' ponzi scheme would citadel be capable of pulling off from that position. We know they have been creating shit tons of phantom shares with naked shorting...could this go even deeper? Maybe they aren't actually executing trades coming out of RH, or something along those lines.

as was found out weeks earlier - rh did not have all (or even any) gme shares in their account - but delegated the management of all shares (buy/sell) to their broker and only money was really transferred.

that means broker can do pretty much everything unless rh client is selling. and this could mean, that a lot of rh (and maybe others) never hit the market in reality.

this could explain, why the buying of retail is not changing the price as expected. because all the buying is aggregated in a pool of a broker and only hits the market when the broker benefits from it.

if this is true the broker (or whoever) was able to „create“ shares himself, because there was only money involved.

if the marketprice is low - like it was for gme in december - this pretty much does not matter, because the involved money is not a lot - but if the price suddenly rises and a lot of people start to sell, they are getting issues because they need so much money they need to cough up, without having (not even naked) paper to sell on the market. so they need to „find“ this money through „investments“ - good explanation also, why rh got B$ as an investment in january and the broker sold a bond lately.

if they used all the (rh) money to short gme in real and got caught in a beartrap - it is the perfect moment, when the whole mechanism collapses. no gains on the market from their shorting activities and a giantic amount of money to deliver, because people sold during the first „squeeze“.

in case this is somewhat true, they took all the money from retail, which thought to be long in gme, but did not buy any paper for it and instead used it to short the stock.

all this would not touch the market at all, because there is no paper involved.

please kill my interpretation.

if the marketprice is low - like it was for gme in december - this pretty much does not matter, because the involved money is not a lot - but if the price suddenly rises and a lot of people start to sell, they are getting issues because they need so much money they need to cough up, without having (not even naked) paper to sell on the market. so they need to „find“ this money through „investments“ - good explanation also, why rh got B$ as an investment in january and the broker sold a bond lately.

if they used all the (rh) money to short gme in real and got caught in a beartrap - it is the perfect moment, when the whole mechanism collapses. no gains on the market from their shorting activities and a giantic amount of money to deliver, because people sold during the first „squeeze“.

if this case is somewhat true, they took all the money from retail, which thought to be long in gme, but did not buy any paper for it and instead used it to short the stock.

all this would not touch the market at all, because there is no paper involved and it would not be found out as long the price stays low.

market price would tend to go down, regardless of retail buying.

please kill my interpretation.

wild idea.

as was found out weeks earlier - rh did not have all (or even any) gme shares in their account - but delegated the management of all shares (buy/sell) to their broker and only money was really transferred.

that means broker can do pretty much everything unless rh client is selling. and this could mean, that a lot of shares from rh (and maybe others) never hit the market in reality.

this could explain, why the buying of retail is not changing the price as expected. because all the buying is aggregated in a pool of a broker and only hits the market when the broker benefits from it.

if this is true the broker (or whoever) was able to „create“ shares himself, because there was only money involved.

if the marketprice is low - like it was for gme in december - this pretty much does not matter, because the involved money is not a lot - but if the price suddenly rises and a lot of people start to sell, they are getting issues because they need so much money they need to cough up, without having (not even naked) paper to sell on the market. so they need to „find“ this money through „investments“ - good explanation also, why rh got B$ as an investment in january and the broker sold a bond lately.

A few names that come to mind are Ivan Boesky, Michael Milken, and the investment bank Drexel Burnham Lambert. Boesky was busted for insider trading as he would buy a stake in a company that was on the verge of a merger or acquisition, and sell once the announcement caused the stock to rise. He was labeled a market manipulator and collaborated with Milken and his investment bank, Drexel Burnham Lambert. Milken was the junk bond king and would use these junk bonds to finance M&A's. Essentially they would prepare an M&A, get in early, announce, and sell when the price spiked while also making money on the bond fees. When it all came tumbling down the Insider Trading Act of 1988 was passed.

So what does this have to do with Kenny. Not sure but I'm going to speculate. We know Ken likes to manipulate the market, we know he likes to short companies into the ground, and we know he's definitely capable of issuing junk bonds. I remember a while back another ape pointing out a connection between him and the exited CFO of GME, Jim Bell. I can't find the link to the original post so if I do I will link it. For being a CFO, Jim isn't very good at managing finances and has a back for being in the seat come bankruptcy time. Coldwater Creek - Bankrupt 2014. P.F. Chang's - basically bankrupt and sold to investment firms 2019. Then come GME, sure fire for bankruptcy. Seems like Kenny and Jim are doing the reverse of Boesky and Milken. Find a target, short the shit out of it, install an insider to ensure it's collapse, collect tax free profits and golden parachutes. All out in the open.

How does this tie back to UT, no clue. Not even sure if I'm on the right thought path. I'll leave that to an ape with an actual wrinkle in their brain. Mine is as smooth as an egg. So I'm going to get back to polishing it and snorting crayons.

Okay I might have something

.. A genius. Just like x X x did it but better

What is "AX"?

What is the Ax?

The ax is the market maker who is most central to the price action of a specific security across tradable exchanges. The ax can be identified by studying Level II quotes and noting which market maker seems to have the greatest effect on the security's price. The term ax is sometimes applied to analysts who are especially influential in their calls on companies they cover, but this is a less defined usage of the term.

Ok, this is probably way off but: Texas - home of GME 6th/Congress refers to: Morgan Stanley and Shitadel both have offices on this street (along with a ton of others)

So, long shot here, but OP has semi-confirmed that the DTC (subsidiary of DTCC) has the records needed to catch them. My theory is that Citadel placed people on the GameStop board SPECIFICALLY because GameStop was a hemorrhaging Brick and Mortar.

Their job was to ensure that GameStop failed. This allowed Citadel, and likely Morgan Stanley in some capacity to short the life out of the stock. They were right on target for having the company crash and burn, but then RC notices some funkiness and gets his peeps looking into it. THEY see the DTC missing link and find the smoking gun. Mr. Royal Crown realizes that GameStop still has value, but they are tanking it.

He buys stock then sends a threatening letter to the board that they are being negligent in allowing this to happen. This is him laying his legal framework to ensure he ends up in control of the cards.

Then, January. I think that January was a test by the whales. They didn't expect it to moon; they expected it to get shut down, but this allowed them to figure out who the rotten culprits were by seeing who bled the most.

It also allowed for a ton of publicity that the shorts were not quite prepared for. This lead to the mistakes with the media posting things too early, etc, because it was a frantic rush to get ahead of it.

I think that this last earnings call was a catalyst because it was their deadline to put the nail in the coffin. If it had all worked out, they would've had the company report massive losses from the quarter, and it would've sealed the deal.

Now, they are frantically trying to get ahead of the tumbling dominoes, and they are starting to crumble because of the single fact that GameStop didn't crumble before this earnings report.

The university connection is an alumnus was able to access systems that they should not have been, either through oversight of permissions or nefarious means. Citadel has an internship program with the university, so my guess is that someone who was the liaison between Shitadel and the College realized what was happening, and began documenting things. They are likely the ones who  the  to the SillyEconomicsCompany.

Somehow Morgan Stanley and Shitadel are in bed together; Shitadel hemorrhaging money is a threat to them as well. Perhaps there is another company that MS was doing the same with, and exposing one exposes them both?

Are there any "big wigs" at MS that might be old buddies with Kenny G?

AHH just throwing my hat into the ring coz this is awesome 😄 OP is either an insider or a crackpot in his mum's basement sending you round in circles and having fun but.....

From the post highlighting the links between BlackRock, RC and Citadel. I'd guess RC joining the board of a failing overshorted GameStop and potentially making some big investor a ton of money and crushing their rival.....isn't a happenstance.

BlackRock knew citadel was over shorted in GameStop, they saw a chance not just for revenge, but elimination. Called on RC to come in and turn the company around.

Now wheres my tin foil hat!!! Oh! On my head 😄 All this is my personal crazy theories, no one sue me!

So using that context of data backup of transactions etc. The Texas Capitol Building along with the Supreme Court of Texas can be found on Congress ave. So if I'm understanding correctly, Shitadel has been buying off (paying) Texas legislation. An alumni from UT discovered this information because they still had access to Shitadel systems. If my inference is correct we are talking MAJOR levels of corruption here. Fuck a short squeeze, this has the makings to be much bigger than a couple HFs going insolvent. 🤔

If it isn't that, the only thing I found that connects Shitadel to the rest of Congress ave is the fact that Morgan Stanley is located there. After the liquidation of Archegos on Friday, it's clear that they needed cash and fast. The only thing that would make sense is that both Shitadel and MS have some form of back door avenue of supporting each other financially. This data center could be where records of such manipulation are being kept. It would make sense as to why they would want to keep the Austin office out of the public eye persay, at least when compared to their other branch locations.

CLO SEC Lose

CLO = Collateralized Loan Obligations

"CLOs were created because the same "tranching" structure was invented and proven to work for home mortgages in the early 1980s. Very early on, pools of residential home mortgages were turned into different tranches of bonds to appeal to various forms of investors. Corporations with good credit ratings were already able to borrow cheaply with bonds, but those that could not had to borrow from banks at higher costs. The CLO created a means by which companies with weaker credit ratings could borrow from institutions other than banks, lowering the overall cost of money to them."

Then the OP goes to tell, seemingly, intimate details about varying offices and Madoff's PN being placed in each.

Very bizarre, true or not, makes for a good change of pace. Does anyone else fell like GME has turned into Don't F with cats (for more than one reason)?

Piggy backing on this. - KG has been very vocal about changes to IL tax laws. - Morgan Stanley liquidated tf out of Archegos because they needed money and quick. Maybe a back door channel between Citadel and MS. The cloud storage would potentially have records of these transactions. - potentially influencing law changes by paying off legislators. The Capitol building and Supreme Court are also located on Congress ave. - there is a mole that leaked these findings, to whom? We don't know. But they were an alumni at UT that likely interned at citadel. OP may or may not have more information regarding that. The timing is interesting however because we were just informed that there was a whistleblower. Could it be this UT alum?

Will be updating this comment as we draw more speculative conclusions

Whatever channel they were using is likely one that retail wouldn't have access to. Or anyone outside of citadel for that matter. I think that is one of the mistakes that Kenny G made. Not closing off or limiting access to everyone that used to have access but shouldn't have access to their systems anymore. I think this person let OP look at the books and he saw some fucky shit. If it's anything like the Madoff Ponzi scheme, KG never really had any of the money he claimed he did. He was just moving numbers around to give the appearance that he was running a legit operation. If he had frenimes on legislation, they probably had some sort of symbiotic relationship. He would let the legislators in on insider trading secrets, in exchange they would protect him from any heat he may receive. It may be why the sec has been so hands off with this whole thing. Explains why he had like 5 lawyers during the first hearing as well. I think OP got a look at the real books, not the fabricated bullshit that gets self reported. That's my thought process. It would be WILD if true 🤔

Ok this is big- OP is in emoji-land because it'll protect us from insider trading concerns.

It seems there's a code:

And then I don't know what 🧩 means

Hmm, could this be something!?!

" So many 🗿's are on the path, they just haven't stumbled upon the right trees and bushes. Yet."

Could that be a reference to:

<https://www.sun-sentinel.com/news/fl-xpm-2009-03-21-0903200202-story.html>

"Newsweek will report that Bernard Madoff has told unidentified friends that it was George W. Bush who actually forced him to develop the $65 billion Ponzi scheme that ruined thousands of people. Friends of Bernie say he was ready to be an honest broker until Bush came to him in a dream and urged him to commit massive financial fraud."

That could also explain " xXx " since another commenter on here mentioned that that sort of capitalizing is used in monograms, which would be important when using first middle and last names.... George W. Bush = gBw.... thoughts?

Sorry for the spam but I think these fuckers are the baddest in the business. And they're connected. A quote from their leadership.

Feinberg has been described as "secretive" in The New York Times.[17] In 2007, Feinberg told Cerberus shareholders, "If anyone at Cerberus has his picture in the paper and a picture of his apartment, we will do more than fire that person. We will kill him. The jail sentence will be worth it." [18]

Also this:

Cerberus is the parent company of DynCorp, which is a major national security contractor with the U.S. government.[19]

John William Snow is the former CEO of CSX Corporation, and served as the 73rd United States Secretary of the Treasury under U.S. President George W. Bush. He replaced Secretary Paul O'Neill on February 3, 2003 and was succeeded by Henry Paulson on July 3, 2006, in a move that had been anticipated.

OH to have inside info like this....

permalink reddit ceddit

[–] GMEToTheMoooooooooon 8 points 2 months ago

I think there are a few possibilities as to what OP is doing here.

1. OP is someone with inside knowledge who wants Ken Griffin taken down, but does not want to dox themselves.
2. OP is a shill trying to get us to focus our attention on irrelevant things.
3. OP is just having some harmless fun to keep them and us entertained, but ultimately doesn't really know much more than anyone else about what's going on.

/u/RatioAtBlessons care to post any clues as to which one it is? I don't think it's 2 because I can't see how this would benefit the shorts.

I wouldn't mind if it was 3 because this is fun, but I'm hoping it's 1.

permalink reddit ceddit

[–] curious_pinniped 4 points 2 months ago

I was having some fun with this, wasn't sure if it was real or not at first, but looking at OPs posting/commenting history they do not appear to be an insider to say the least (also post is marked "fluff")

permalink reddit ceddit

[–] GMEToTheMoooooooooon 5 points 2 months ago

I also looked at their comment history. It's also possible that OP has contact with an insider who is using their account. /r/GME doesn't allow posts from new accounts and maybe the person commenting here doesn't have an account or has an account that identifies them. I wouldn't read too much into the "Fluff" tag. What else could it be tagged as? Discussion? Shitpost? They're more or less the same anyway.

permalink reddit ceddit

[–] RatioAtBlessons (deleted by user) 2 points 2 months ago

I was initially replying to another question and saw your comment. Figured from the way that I read it and the comments after that it's best to reach out to you instead of letting it spiral into some sort of shill/fud nonsense. Nothing more.

Not a conspiracy and I don't want to encourage such. Most importantly I don't want to take away from all of hard work done by pixel/rensole/warden/luridess/and many-many others. If my post trends toward that I'll take it down or ask the mods to review it to see if it violates.

Just between me/you As for my post and comment history since joining r/gme sometimes it's better to be assumed an incoherent fool.

Is this a giant Ponzi Scheme of Kevin? Does he not actually have any money and he's just been doing exactly what Madoff did???

watched the closing price of the S&P 100. They then picked the best-performing stocks and used them to create bogus "baskets" of stocks as the basis for false trading records, which Madoff claimed were generated from his supposed "split-strike conversion" strategy, in which he bought blue-chip stocks and took options contracts on them. They frequently made their "trades" at a stock's monthly high or low, resulting in the high "returns" that they touted to customers.

Are ETFs the baskets???

Is Ken is using ETFs like CLOs?

Collateralized loan obligations (CLO) are securities that are backed by a pool of loans. CLOs are repackaged loans that are sold to investors. They're like a collateralized mortgage obligation (CMO), except that the underlying instruments are loans instead of mortgages.

CLO SEC LOSE
