Pride of the Tide

Shitpost

On the real, my G-Wag came with six Tonka wheels Born to 💎👉, GME-flag gang, put that on my tears On my Lear ✈️, tryna pop my 🤡🗣️ off'll get ya hands cuffed for real, come on Kenny..you know I know you not for real..come on Kenny you know I know you faker than them shiny white veneers..

Did whatever it took to get to top 😢 Kenny? Money in the hands of whoever could get you in the room with him.. Didn't matter who you had to ✂️ along the way.

Could never have gotten the NY/Chicago/Dallas Feds without the blessing of the Treasury. You know I know how easy it is to puppet string the SEC...so no worries there.

But you fucked up.

Too many politicians with their hands out. Too many properties. Too many firings. Too many trips.

Too many excuses.

$142.58 wasn't that the calculation for this week? I've been waiting..if you have the balls..meet me and my squad there.

Ryan was just the next 🎭🐳

ProHint: Only a matter of time before you have to decide if those cases of Diet Coke are worth the price you're paying.

And if it's 🌬️, it's just a 🔥 drill I've been lying still, in the 🌴 even 🐻 chill Knead another : reminder I make a giants kneel..

"Will you say, 'Thank you, Mr. President at least?' Trump asked Mary Callahan Erdoes, a senior JPMorgan executive, referring to the bank's surprisingly strong earnings reported just hours earlier. "Say hello to Jamie."

Trump is infamous for his firing of anyone who went against him, and replacing them with friends, family, and basically anyone who was already in league with him prior to the election.

That being said, the only thing I could find that all the players mentioned in the comments seem to have in common that would bring them into contact with Trump would be the so-called Great American Economic Revival Industry Groups.

Aside from that:

- Ken Griffin was a major donor to Trump through the Future45 SuperPAC.
- Mnuchin was Trump's campaign finance chair (legal troubles over Sears and other questionable practices)
- Future45 also includes Todd Ricketts, co-owner of the Chicago Cubs who was made finance chair for the Republican National Committee in 2017 after not being able to adequately divest from his financial holdings.

Search

- Jamie Dimon seems to famously dislike Trump, so I'm not sure he was in on it though he may have indirectly benefited from whatever happened. JPMorgan Chase isn't exactly clean either, though.

At any rate, it sounds like all of these appointments by Trump in positions of power may have led to an opportunity that shouldn't have happened...assuming 360.4 is meant to point to something that happened roughly a year ago, the biggest thing that comes to mind is the federal reserve announcing their programs to prop up the economy -- including buying up junk bonds and toxic assets.

Tinfoil hat

Did Ken get access to insider information from Trump through his political donations, which in turn gave him time to enact a plan to abuse the program in exchange for a portion of the profits? Possibly by selling the damaged assets to the Fed as a guaranteed buyer and then shorting the shit out of them as the US did not enact any short-selling restrictions?

39 ...

RedditGrifter · 1m

Wow. Great info there! Definitely above my head but those seem like some solid connections.

14 ...

kyune · 1m

I don't think my tinfoil hat section has too much merit now that time has passed--but the premise of smoke still stands... the question is where do we find the fire

"360, 5 left I'm counting it to the day I'm thinking if I did everything I said Or if the year got the best of me One thing about time, it waits for nobody You told me, isn't that what they say"

So he was counting down to a year since....?

I mean this well...how did you determine that, what does "360.4" mean in that context? I am trying to ask the right question on the offchance that a) you know something we don't and b) If I don't ask the right question we're all screwed.

§ 360.4 Administrative expenses.

The priority for "administrative expenses of the receiver", as that term is used in section 11(d)(11) of the Act (12 U.S.C. 1821(d)(11)), shall include those necessary expenses incurred by the receiver in liquidating or otherwise resolving the affairs of a failed insured depository institution. Such expenses shall include pre-failure and post-failure obligations that the receiver determines are necessary and appropriate to facilitate the smooth and orderly liquidation or other resolution of the institution

I don't think so though...since then apparently Trump did not get any donations from Kenny G? That may be the start of the public rift.

Seriously, I do think I am off the mark in some way but the other comments/happenings do a better job of furthering the cause/deduction/whatever

Itlawdy · 1m

He didn't give any money to trump specifically, which lends credence to trump calling him out subtly and not liking him, but ken did give $61 million to GOP candidates and groups. Maybe he didn't like Trump personally, but donating to super PACs would still help his cause, as in, being buddy-buddy with national legislatures (corruption/bribery/lobbying)

Beyond Blinken and Austin, the website lists others who have ties to Biden and the leadership of the Democratic Party. There are also D.C. partners with links to the Republican Party.

At White House ceremony, President Trump calls out for no-show Chicago billionaire Ken Griffin: 'Where the hell is he?'

"Citadel spokeswoman Megan Ingersoll said only that Griffin didn't attend the event."

"Two years ago, Griffin was described by a Chicago Tribune columnist as "simpatico" with the president on some of his trade and economic agenda, but he's also criticized Trump. In 2018, the Financial Times reported, Griffin blasted Trump's criticism of the Federal Reserve, saying it was "completely inappropriate for the president of the United States" and warning it could hurt the U.S. dollar."

Being smooth brained and not really knowing what happened during that time in USA i made following conclusions:

Chat

Search

2. Ken should have been there, however, there is assumption that he was warned not to. Also, there was statement that he wasn't in Washington, however officially nobody knows where he was 3)Trump accused Ken of hiding money, as Ken wasn't present. 4)What got my attention more, was that Trump said following "Will you say, 'Thank you, Mr. President at least?" Trump asked Mary Callahan Erdoes, a senior JPMorgan executive, referring to the bank's surprisingly strong earnings reported just hours earlier. "Say hello to Jamie.". Upon checking video this was made in jokey manner, however JPM indeed beat earning expectations during that quarter.

Dunno will this be helpful, as I haveno knowledge when it comes to how things work in USA. Hopefully someone more wrinkle brained will see something in this.

I can only guess that he meant why was he not there. Because it was stated that he should have been there.

Edit: Also it was assumed he was warned. So I wonder why was he not there, what was he potentially warned about, and who warned him?

I have no answers only questions

Edit2: I got caught up in this mess yesterday, and I regret it. Not deleting this post, but adding in my regret for future readers. I started as fun but quickly turned into conspiracy. If I'm going to get worked up over something I need to require evidence first.

How about China knows how rigged our US market is. Trump knew too. Like Ken said, "you need access to the Fed." The FED is the market now. Trump wanted some thanks. But at some point, Trump wasn't gonna keep playing so he's out OR some white hats came along. Archegos was a warning. If it plays out like '08, sharks 🐬 will start start eating their brethren that are 💯 out to save themselves. It's a house of Uno cards about to come tumbling down. All the fraud found in GME is just a window into the entire market made up of fraudulent transactions. GME might be allowed to squeeze now just to release some pressure in the system. And keep some people quiet.

GME squeeze might also take Ken & Citadel down. BUT only with help of 🦸 in white hats. And the Fed would have to help too. Only big tech 🦸 are big enough and Biden owes them a favor. Taking down Citadel is risky because so huge, but post implies this. Some settlement where GME 🦸 get their tendies, but entire financial system doesn't collapse seems more prudent. But it might be beyond that stage now. 💎🙌🚀😊

As an aside it looks like Dias is trying to drum up that ol kenny was hiding assets during the initial divorce.

<https://www.npr.org/sections/money/2010/04/american-dream.html/>

And going down that line was: <https://dealbreaker.com/2015/10/anne-dias-griffin-making-ken-so-mad-he-had-to-buy-300-million-in-real-estate-just-to-cope>

Citadel executives have been drawn into the divorce because of questions surrounding the purchase price paid to them for the sale of their interests in Citadel. Dias Griffin believes that information will help shed light on the value of Citadel at that time, and therefore Griffin's net worth, when she signed the prenuptial agreement.
